Seven students from remote communities died between 2001 and 2011 while attending high school in the city

May 25, 2016

The inquest into the deaths of seven First Nations students in Thunder Bay, Ont., resumes this week with lawyers for each of the parties making closing statements.

Jethro Anderson, Paul Panacheese, Curran Strang, Robyn Harper, Reggie Bushie, Kyle Morriseau and Jordan Wabasse died between 2000 and 2011. All of them had travelled from remote communities to Thunder Bay to attend high school.

On Wednesday, lawyers are expected to put forward a joint slate of suggested recommendations for the jurors to consider before issuing the inquest verdict and final recommendations in June.
